COURT MUDDLES
STILL UNSETTLED

Whitaker-Dinny Controversy
Promises to Be Long
Drawn Out.

ARGUMENTS THIS MORNING

Motion to Show Cause Why Writ of Certiorari Should Not Be Issued.

With the promise of a long-drawn-out argument, all of a technical legal nature, the matter now known as the Judge Whitaker-City Attorney Dinny case, came up for another hearing in Judge George C. Armstrong's division of the district court yesterday afternoon upon motion to show cause why a writ of certiorari should not be issued at the request of the city attorney.

The new proceeding in the district court is an outcome of the city court affair, in which the city attorney was sentenced to serve one day in jail for contempt of court, because of the alleged refusal to prosecute cases, and also in which the court substituted Special Prosecutors E. A. Walton and E. A. Rogers to conduct the court business, a proceeding alleged by the city attorney to be a virtual usurpation of office.

Hearing On Today.

While a writ of prohibition brought to prevent the carrying out of the sentence for the alleged contempt is still under consideration, the city attorney seeks to have the whole matter, especially as to the appointment of special prosecutors, reviewed by the court, and this matter is now before Judge Armstrong, coming up for hearing under the application for the writ of certiorari yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and after two hours' argument, being continued until this morning at 10 o'clock.

Answering the order to show cause why a writ should not be issued as prayed for, E. A. Walton, attorney for Judge Whitaker, demurred to the application, because of what he termed its lack of sufficiency or purposes. He summed up his opening argument against the issuance of the writ by saying: "Our position is that nothing can possibly result from the granting of the writ; that even if a determination is reached, there can be nothing either in favor of or against anybody."

Mr. Walton's argument occupied over an hour, and he was replied to by Assistant City Attorney P. J. Daly, who did not complete his reply when the court adjourned until this morning.

Mr. Daly's Reply.

In his reply of yesterday, Mr. Daly dwelt particularly upon the fact that while the city attorney's office had been willing and ready at all times to perform its duties in the prosecution of cases on behalf of the city, and had shown its willingness by appearance and representation, it had been denied the privilege.

Much of Mr. Daly's argument was, too, given to contradiction of the theories advanced by Mr. Walton, especially as to the standing of the city court. Mr. Walton having contended that the lower court is a court of record, and which was refuted by Mr. Daly.

Mother of Young Man, Killed at Dev-

Anna McGuire, mother of Hugh McGuire, the young foreman who was killed in the powder explosion at Devil's Slide last June, filed suit in the district court yesterday against the Continental Casualty company of Indiana to recover upon a $2,000 life insurance policy carried by the son, and in which the mother was named as the beneficiary.

WOMAN FILES SUIT

Suit to recover a savings bank deposit of $493.71 was filed in the district court Friday by Helen M. Holman, against the Deseret Savings bank and W. A. Holman, as executor of the estate of Carrie L. Eslinger. The complaint alleges that with the intention of providing a gift for the plaintiff, Carrie L. Eslinger deposited the amount named in the savings bank, but that after the death of the donor, John N. Eslinger, the widow and then acting special administrator of the estate, stopped the fund in the bank, and attempted to divert the general estate.
